Pure Gold from a World-Leading Mint

1 Oz. Gold Bar - Royal Canadian Mint in Assay

The Royal Canadian Mint enjoys a superb reputation around the world. The RCM has a long-standing history of producing exceptional precious metal products, including not only gold bars, but also coins, medals and, of course, fine gold bars.

Before the Royal Canadian Mint existed, Canadian coins were minted at the Royal Mint in London, England. As Canada grew and emerged as an individual nation, the supply of coins from England was not sufficient to meet the demand. So, the Royal Canadian Mint was built and opened a branch in Ottawa in 1908.

The mint began refining gold in 1911, but its electrolysis method was too slow and cumbersome. They then switched to a chlorination process and eventually began to refine gold using a process that combined both techniques.

Assayers tested and recorded the gold as it came out of production, and this work is still being done for each gold product the RCM produces. Currently, minted 1 oz. Royal Canadian Mint Bars are available in Assay, complete with protective covering and an assay card. The RCM guarantees the purity and content of each gold product, including their 1 oz. RCM gold bar in Assay.

Investing in gold bars from the Royal Canadian Mint gives you the opportunity to diversify, increase, and set aside your gold holdings. The one-ounce weight is just right for beginning investors, as well as for experienced investors who want to set aside some of their gold holdings in small bars for higher liquidity.

Gold bars in assay are stable investments that tend to increase in value over time. The spot price of gold has historically taken a basically upward trend. Gold prices in 2016 are approximately twice what they were ten years earlier in 2006. Every year is different, but the overall pattern of increase is notable for those considering investing in .9999 pure gold bars.

Gold bars in Assay are beautifully presented, but the main value of the assay card is its assurance that your investment gold is 100% authentic. You never have to travel to Canada to receive these phenomenal fine gold products. Instead, simply find a reputable dealer that trades gold acquired directly from the RCM.
